The KISMET project is led by the City of Hamburg's Authority for Economy and Innovation (Food Cluster Division). The KISMET partnership is made up of 13 partner organizations from seven Baltic Sea Region countries. Transnationally experienced organizations come together to tackle the complex issues of transforming sustainable food environments. These partners and 15 associated organizations feed on vast experiences from previous contexts with regard to the circular economy, and food systems. Based on this as well as further input of state-of-the-art material, they together develop the solution "Enabling Programme for sustainable food environments".

The partnership includes thematic forerunners also on the European level such as Södertälje or Vejle; highly experienced cooperation partners such as Prizztech, Vidzeme Planning Region or XAMK; innovative actors such as Steinbeis, LIC, or Tartu Biotechnology Park; dynamic specialist-knowledge encompassing ones like Foodworks and Beras International; and the transnational network ScanBalt with its working group BioEconomy.

The project includes three work packages: WP1 Preparing solutions is lead by PP6 Vejle Municipality, WP2 Piloting and evaluating solutions is lead by PP1 City of Hamburg, and WP3 Transferring solutions is lead by PP3 Södertälje municipality. The work packages consist of different activities which have their own Group of activities leader.
